TITLE: Washington Cartoonist Loves Hillary and Donald.

Hillary and Donald are gifts on a silver platter to a caricature artist such as Dan Youra. With a few strokes of the mouse, Youra knocks out another version of "Yellow Hair" vs. "Pantsuit."

The daily cartoons of this prolific cartoonist fly around the Internet on Facebook and Twitter.

Dorothy Hamilton Richardson shares with readers that Dan Youra "is the best conservative editorial cartoonist in the USA today!"

His work is reviewed as "satiric," "acerbic," and "cruel." His most recognized talent is drawing colorful caricatures of famous peoples. He conjures up caricatures of political leaders and world leaders. Dan captures a person's "look" in a way that makes his creations immediately recognizable.

His sharp observations take form in colorful artwork that comes alive with whimsical characters: from George Washington to George Bush, from Bill Gates to Bill Clinton, and from Clinton to Trump.

Dan's incisive commentary on national politics and international affairs matured from years of travel, decades of education and a life-time of reading comic books from Mad Magazine to Kung Fu.

His edgy artwork is "painted" with a few clicks on his laptop. With one click Dan can elevate the downtrodden and bring down the mighty.

Youra's cartoons are reviewed as "Entertaining," "Marvelous," "Never a dull moment," "Make you think." "Timely and well-executed," "Awesome!" "Funny stuff," "Fabulous!" and, "Very different and artsy."

Sarah Palin, Mitt Romney and Ron Paul have weighed in on Dan's political cartoons praising them as "fun," "entertaining," and "interesting."

Reince Priebus, chairman of the RNC, describes Dan's work as "Wonderful, fun, witty and very unique."

Cathy McMorris Rodgers, highest ranking GOP woman in the House of Representatives, says, "Dan draws fun and beautifully portrayed political cartoons. He is a huge talent for the conservative cause."

Rob McKenna, Washington attorney general, comments, "Dan Youra is keeping lit the flame of political cartooning with his witty, sometimes acerbic work. There's never a dull moment with Dan's cartoons!"

Luke Esser, a former state chairman for the GOP asserts, "Dan makes you laugh and he makes you think - and we need more of both today."

Dan was the first recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship from his alma mater University of Wisconsin Oshkosh, where he graduated in International Studies. After a year in Latin America, he studied political science for three years in graduate school at The Ohio State University.

Dan lives on the Olympic Peninsula in Washington State.
