INTRODUCTION

The Book of Carbon is a sacred text written by Saint Alberto d'Carbon, the spiritual leader of anti-carbon fanatics around the world. Saint Alberto charms little children and shames adults into following his message of guilt and self incrimination for abusing carbon.

According to Saint d'Carbon, in the beginning was the good carbon. Humans lived with God in the Garden of Eden, enjoying the fruits of good carbon. Then, one day, the snake entered the Garden driving a gas-guzzling automobile. He tempted the humans to take a spin with him around the Garden, which immediately filled with choking smog. God, sneezing and coughing, kicked the snake and his carbon abusing buddies out of Paradise.

The lesson to the story, according to Saint Alberto, is that "It is your fault. You and your dirty car generate so much carbon that you are even killing God. It is your sin." D'Carbon's disciples preach this anti-carbon mantra worldwide to rid the planet of the evil, black soot, named from the Latin word "carbo" meaning coal.

The Book of Carbon lists four simple commandments:

- I. Thou shalt not covet carbon.
- II. Thou shalt not breathe carbon on the Sabbath.
- III. Thou shalt keep your footprint out of carbon.
- IV. Thou shalt report carbon skeptics to carbon police.

To join the Church of Carbon: 1.) Repent of your unclean footprints, 2.) Dedicate yourself to the decarbonization of your body, and 3.) go forth and make believers of all people.
